"If I had a boy and he was as lazy as that Bas-"If I had a boy and he was as lery as that Bassett is thump him." said an inturiated yet highly respectable merchant at the Polo Grounds yesterday. This remark was caused by the lazy and stupid playing of the men in general and Bassett in particular. Bassett's actions were more like those of a man under the influence of a nowerful than those of a man conscious of his surround-per and alive to his responsibilities.

Cannor, John Ewing and Burrell toward the close of the same seemed to be in not much better order. The same at the Polo Grounds was between the New-York of Brocklyn teams and Ward's men won after an unexciting contest. The Giants did not play in ampionship form nor anything like it, and a continuation that present style of playing will land them much bettom than the top of the list. The team new in third place, yesterday's defeat enabling the as to go ahead of New-York.

Destons to go ahead of New-York.

The attentiance was large and enthusinstic, many people from Brooklyn being in the 6,000.

John Ewing pitched for New-York, and Burrell, a prim-looking athlete, caught. It was Burrell's first game, and early in the battle he gave promise of doing great work. He got excited in the ninth inning and did not seem to know whether he was playing marbles or toseball. His throwing to bases was good, and he may preve an acquisition to the club. It was silly management, however, to put a new man in fer such a game and before such a crowd. Richardson played a splendid game, and W. O'Brien made a wonderful running catch. Many friends of the New-York team believe that as Connor is doing so poorly New-York team believe that as Connor is doing so poorly Captain Ewing ought to don a uniform and cover first tase for a time at least. Ewing cannot captain the nine trom the players' bench, and the team is in need of a leader on the Fuld. Ewing would have little throwing to do at first, and he could not but any worse than Connor to do at first, and he could not but any worse than Connor to do at first, and he could not but any worse than Connor to do at first, and he could not but any worse than Connor to do at first, and he could not but any worse than Connor to do at first, and he could not but any worse than Connor to do at first, and he could not but any worse than Connor to do at first and the could not but any worse than Connor to do at first and the could not be the connormal transfer of the connormal tran

In the next inning the Brookirn contingent howled right merrily when the Bridegrooms scered two runs and took advantable took the lead. After Burns had been put out W. On a wild throw to first by J. Ewing Griffin scored.

The New-Yorkers evened up matters in the fourth inning by scoring one run, and but for a wonderful running W. O'Brien the Glants would have made more. O'Rourke was sent to first on called balls and Connor, as usual, was put out. Richardson was also put out, but the play enabled O'Rourke to get to second. Glasscock the play enabled O'Rourke to get to second. Glasscock then hit toward second, and, although Ward and J. O'Brien made a great effort to get it, the ball rolled safe and a Rourke second. In the seventh inning the New-York men woke up lo enough to play ball for a few minutes, and the result was three runs, and the game was again a tie. Burrell made a hit, and went to second on a wild pitch. John Ewing tried to strike out, but Kinslow allowed the ball to pass him, and Long John got to first. He gave the city a quit-claim deed for that portion of the land that would be required for these improvements and the Board of Aldermen by resolution declared the streets public highways. This did not suit the Long Island Railroad Company, as the opening of the streets would compel them either to bridge or flag the new thoroughfares and remove long lines of freight cars which they now keep stored on the tracks at these points They accordingly put a large force of men at work recting posts and stringing barbed wire across the new streets, thus effectually closing them for public traffic. Not satisfied with this, the railroad men dug up the earth with which Mr. Silverstone's men had levelled the new streets and threw it one side. William Covert and George Becker, who were in company with Obey at the time he met his death, and who were arrested on suspicion, were discharged by Coroner Everett. THE INFLUX OF RUSSIAN HEBREWS.

SECRETARY FOSTER WRITES A LETTER ON THE ATTITUDE OF THE DEPARTMENT.

Washington, Aug. 1.-Simon Wolf and Lewis Abra-Hebrew Congregations, have addressed to the Secre tary of the Treasury a communication on the subject of the immigration of Russian Hebrews to the United States. In their address the writers, while deploring the arrival in this country of so many of their exiled people, maintain that the statutes of the United States uld not be so interpreted as to class them as pauper or assisted emigrants, "when hands of help and well position of American citizenship, without demanding any contributions from National or local taxes." "That the refugees are generally in distress," say the writers, "is not denied. placed them in a situation that is recognized through out the civilized world as resulting from the greatest crime of the so-called enlightened century, and this distress their brethren are untiringly striving to alleviate. To close the avenues of this free and liberty downtrodden and unjustly persecuted, would be against the underlying genius and theory of our glorious and beloved Constitution. Neither the letter nor the spirit of the laws of our country requires us thus to

The writers refer to the large influx of Russian Hebrews into this country about ten years ago and say that so far as can be ascertained not a single one of them has become a public burden. Arguing from this and the further fact that a large number of orhaving for their object the general care and elevation of the exiles, the writers maintain that even if they have their "passage paid with the money of another" they cannot be designated as paupers, but rather come under the exceptional clause of the law, viz, "Where it is satisfactorily shown that such person does not

To this address secretary Faster has replied as fol lows:

Gentlemen: I beg to acknowledge receipt of your communication of the 27th nit. With its inclosures as stated. . . Be assured, gentlementhal I fully concur in your estimate of the macroinde of the present calamity which has befallen so many of your race, as well as in your none that an early mitigation or essation of the current measures of expulsion may reader unnecessary any general migration of Russian Hebrews to America or elsewhere. Unquestionably a great and sudden influx of exputriated and destinate allows of any race would be a grave misfortune to any country, and American Hebrews act both patriotically and immanely when they advise Jewish refugees against conting hither, but at the same time endeavor to render self-supporting those who finally come. . The apparent scope and thorouginess of your plans for scentring immediate and wide distribution of the expected refugees are most gratifying, and upon the success of your associations in carrying out these plans will largely depend the possibility of the Government meeting your views in other respects.

tions in carrying out these plans will largely depend the possibility of the Government meeting your views in other respects.

While the immigration laws of the United States must and will be enforced, I agree with you that these laws were never enacted in derogation of the planest requirements of humanity, and no worthy immigrant who in all other respects meets the demands of our stautes, should be excluded from the country because through the action of others, he is for the time being homeless and without property.

I shall rely upon your voluntary assurince that you will actively urge upon your brethren in Europe the attitude of our laws toward assisted immigration. I also beg to remind you that any tendency abroad to deflect toward this country the movement of destinitudings or to stimulate their migration hitner would be distinctly hostile to the spirit manifested in your letter and to the spiril in which the Government of the United States desires to treat this difficult and delicate problem.

This, it adopted, would have restored the practice which existed prior to 1881, but which was abolished then as in violation of the principle of the English Constitution, that no supplies can be voted by the Commons except on demand from the Crown. The motion was denied a second reading.

PUNISHMENT WILL FOLLOW THE RECENT ATTEMPTS TO INJURE A GREAT BANKING HOUSE.

The fruitiess efforts of the "bears" of Wall Street to shake the confidence in some of the largest banking couses of the city may result seriously to originators of the rumors that filled the Street on Thursday. Though these rumors were utterly baseless and seemingly malicious, they were industriously circulated fecting the stock market. The recognized leaders in financial circles scouted the reports as transparent fabrications, but their effect could not be imp

The house most prominently mentioned by rumor-mongers was that of Brown Bros. & Co. That firm at first talked of giving a reward for the running down of the originator of the damaging rumors. They were afterward inclined to drop the matter, however, that steps be taken immediately to trace the reports to their source. This was done, and the investigation pointed, it is said, to a member of the Stock Exchange. His name has not been given out, but will be probably to-morrow or Tuesday.

Under the rules of the Stock Exchange, any member who maliciously injures the credit of another member, or of a house represented on the floor, shall be expelled. The charges in this case will be pressed, it is said, and will result probably in the extreme punishment.

Off the Battery the turns had hard work in bringing their tows round the point, going either up the North or East River, for the sea was breaking clear over their bows. Over the Hattery wall the waves were breaking and the front walk was almost impassable.
